THE TALE OF THE DARK CLOUD

Part IV – When Tom Cruise Looked Like an Idiot

All through school- all levels - Krystl had been subjected to merciless bullying.

For one thing, Krystl was a terrible name for a BOY. It had labeled him as WEIRD.

But beyond that, he had always been different. For one thing, he was a MAJOR daydreamer. (Certain teachers even called him “the dreamer”- which didn’t help AT ALL.)

Also, he was a total non-conformist. WHY, he would wonder (sometimes out loud) did these teachers, many of whom seemed LOSERS in their own lives, have the right to tell HIM how to think?

Was this the reason none of them had defended him from the almost constant verbal and even physical abuse by the school bullies?

All he knew was that his life had ALWAYS been filled with misery, loneliness, and yes, hopelessness.

Now matters would soon worsen: When his bridge assignment had come, he had been a no-show.

There just wasn’t any other choice he could have made.

For one thing, he had been assigned to the Millau Viaduct in France. The highest bridge in the world.

His heart STILL wasn't behaving properly from the jump off the Empire State Building. He was still hopeless, too, maybe even more so. Why jump AGAIN? But the biggest reason he was a no-jump was that no one would answer his questions.

To clarify- after having his TV hauled off (yes, he probably had mental problems, too, listening to an apparition that told him to do that, but whatever) he had started doing some research online.

That was how he'd discovered that even though "hopelessness" was being promoted on the mainstream news as an epidemic it truly only seriously affected people who were already like to die- namely the elderly and those with serious comorbidities. All the rest had a situation that could be resolved in much safer ways.

When he (somewhat hysterically) asked his doctor about this the answer was "just jump off the bridge".

"Is there paperwork to support jumping off buildings or bridges?" he had asked. Again, the answer "just jump."

He had persisted. "Are there any debates where we can hear both sides concerning this? Scientific discussions? Are any doctors talking about all the people who miss the safety nets? Remain hopeless? Develop PTSD? End up with weird-beating hearts?"

And the final dismissal: "Why would I waste my time looking at real numbers? The CDC isn't raising any red flags. Go jump off that bridge before it's too late. You are getting yourself into serious trouble."

And now, another sleepless night, and, for a second time, the apparition.

"No status here on earth, right? It was the same with me. I BUILT IBM- look it up for yourself- but when I began to question what was taught as "solid truth", I was ridiculed, rejected.

But think about this: those who question are very special individuals. They are the KEYS to humanity's future!

The truth is that we aren't designed to live in a generic society that doesn't understand what to do except to follow all the rules. Most are brainwashed into believing otherwise- that they should work as many hours as possible and then come home and waste their time staring into an electronic box.

Speaking of which, congratulations on hauling off that TV! Now stop staring into the computer so much.

BUT - you have passed a major test by refusing to jump off that bridge. Now- for the next few days- repeat the following codes at every available opportunity:

- Reclaim personal power 7308748
- Bring the truth into the Light 79674705

I'll return when your voltage has risen a bit more.

And did you know you had a great deal in common with Tom Cruise? He also was defamed for asking questions, doing his own research- now 17 years later it turns out he was right! Watch this tomorrow- just don't spend the whole day online-

With that, he faded away...saying softly "Cruise on..."
